

31st March 2020

Dear Clients,

We are approaching a week into the UK lockdown due to Covid-19; as the prime minister stated that the lockdown will be reviewed in 3 weeks time, we may still be asked to continue in our lockdown or perhaps social distancing may be relaxed a little.

We have had some enquiries, enquiries to which I'm sure you can appreciate, we do not have all the answers to.

During the course of this time of uncertainty, some of you may see your theory expiry date pass by and as it stands, you will have to retake it again unless the Government decide to administer extensions, much like how they have done with vehicle MOT testing.

Some of you may only have a few weeks to a few months of time remaining till your theory expiry date by the time the country is opened up again.

Some of you have had your tests booked but could not take it due to the lockdown commencing.

Some of you are concerned you will forget some of the practical skills you took a long time to master.

Firstly we are all in the same boat, just with slightly different problems and we will do as much as we can to help/assist you.

- 1) If you are studying/preparing for your theory and need any help with your preparations, do contact us or take a screen shot of the question, Whatsapp us the screen shot and we will help you out.
- 2) Please inform us of the date your theory is expiring if it is expiring within 6 months.
- 3) Save the money you would have used for your lessons every week: this will allow you to take many lessons together once the lockdown has been lifted, helping you meet your deadline.

We will keep you updated and we appreciate and thank you for the patience you have shown during these difficult times.

Thank You
Kind Regards
